What is Tirzepatide?

Tirzepatide is a once-weekly treatment that works through two important metabolic pathways: GIP and GLP-1. Together, these signals help support appetite regulation, fullness, and blood sugar balance.

One treatment. Two complementary pathways.

Why Tirzepatide?

Think bigger than willpower.

Weight management is connected to appetite, cravings, fullness, blood sugar, and daily habits. Tirzepatide is designed to support multiple pathways at once in a more complete approach to metabolic health.

Appetite • Fullness • Blood Sugar • Metabolism

Meet the Two Signals

Tirzepatide works through two complementary pathways that influence hunger, fullness, and metabolic response.

GIP — supports insulin response and metabolic signaling

GLP-1 — supports appetite control, fullness, and blood sugar regulation

Dual-action support. One smarter approach.

Why Dual-Action Matters

The advantage is the combination. GIP and GLP-1 each influence different functions, and Tirzepatide brings them together in one streamlined weekly approach.

GIP — metabolic signaling

GLP-1 — appetite + fullness
